PBA: Asi damage suit will seal 'Fil-sham' case

By Jesse Maruya

THE PHILIPPINE Basketball Association yesterday said the P1.2 million damage suit filed by Talk 'N Text's Asi Taulava against the league will help lay to rest all doubts on the "Fil-sham" controversy.

PBA chair Atty. Francisco said the league welcomes Taulava's lawsuit, but is putting its best foot forward on the line after his alleged admission that he is a Filipino player who was earlier accused deported by the Department of Justice for falsifying his citizenship documents.

"(Damage suit) will finally put an end to this dragging issue because if the case is already in court, then a decision will have to be made," said Francisco.

Taulava on Thursday filed the case against Francisco, PBA Commissioner Na-li Roda and the league's Board of Governors for stopping him from playing even without a notice from the Justice department ordering his deportation.

Taulava filed the case before the Quezon City Regional Trial Court.

In a petition for injunction, Taulava

US voters seen dissatisfied with Bush, uneasy on Kerry

WASHINGTON—Many US voters dissatisfied with President George W. Bush's job performance, but uneasy about Sen. John Kerry's ability to protect the nation, according to an Associated Press poll that found the two presidential candidates looked in strife.

"The country is looking for a real leader...an FDR or a Kennedy," said Murray Friedman, an independent from Massachusetts who has worked for both men. "There don't seem to be any of those here."

Kerry scores better. Bush is better qualified to protect the country—an important attribute for an electorate very focused on national security. A majority can still believe that Bush is an honest leader, but Kerry is seen as stronger on meeting jobs.

Neither candidate has been able to gain a clear advantage in the survey of 19th state voters, Minnesota's Kerry and Sen. John Edwards had 46 percent, compared to 46 percent for Republicans Sen. Bush and Vice President Dick Cheney. That's within the margin of error of 3 percentage points. The poll conducted Oct. 16-18.

Many polls out recently show the race even, and some show Bush slightly up.

Almost nine in five, 17 percent, of voters remain in the camp of watching campaigning by Bush and Kerry. The AP found that voters are undecided or are tentatively leaning a candidate while remaining open to changing their minds.

There are more likely than others to disapprove of Bush's job performance and believe invading Iraq was a mistake. And they are more likely than other voters to believe the nation is on the wrong track, according to the poll conducted for the AP by Ipsos Public Affairs.

More in this group than toward Kerry than Bush, but persuadable voters looking for a more likely to win election than those backing Bush and they're more likely to vote Bush than Kerry to protect the nation. AP

"Kerry spent his whole time in the defense spring, you know, but he just doesn't do it on the front," instead of saying what he would do as president," said Leo Rosenkrantz, a businessman on New York's West Virginia.

Some surveys have found that a majority of voters seeing that he's experienced about the risks of changing presidents at a time of terrorist threats and war.

"The party that I'll vote for this year," said Matt Stone, General of Massachusetts. "New Jersey. I'm sure that I don't want Bush. I'm all over completely with Kerry. I'm not sure he's not stronger the opportunity."

Despite doubts about Kerry on national security and strength of leadership, Bush has been able to pull away from the Democrats.

Less than half of Kerry voters in the AP Ipsos poll, 47 percent, approve of Bush's job performance. A survey before 10 percent approval for the very same man, and the president hasn't been able to shake doubt since before the first debate. AP

A minute's silence for slain UK girl

LONDON—A moment's silence will be held in Westminster, central London, on Friday in memory of murdered teenage school girl Louise Brown.

Family members, Louise's school friends and members of the public will stop at 12.30 p.m. in Westminster close 19-year-old, who was shot dead by a bullet fired from a car as she walked home from a friend's on Oct. 9.

The attack was apparently motivated and two men, Mark Kelly, 30, and James Andrews, 23, have been charged with the murder.

Westminster's city council led by Jon Collins said the streets would close and residents to stand up against gun crime.

Westminster has experienced a wave of violence in recent years involving firearms, which has been blamed mainly on drug gangs.

"It's important that people beyond Westminster understand the depth of feeling and anger in the city at this situation and of the time against an innocent person," Collins said. Reuters

US poll projected to cost record $3.9B

WASHINGTON—If anything, democracy does not cost cheap. The 2008 election that lands on Oct. 30th the chosen presidential two but hundreds of congressional races will cost Americans a record $3.9 billion, according to new projections released by campaign finance watchdog groups.

And that will not include just the cost of gubernatorial and other local elections, as well as a plethora of political advertisements by individuals spent on issues ranging from gay marriage to personal freedoms about campaign regulations.

The nonpartisan Center for the American Politics said, in a report released Thursday the estimated cost represented a 38 percent increase over the $3 billion that are believed to have been spent on federal elections five years ago.

"The 2008 presidential and congressional elections will drive up political costs for spending, and the biggest reason is the increase in giving by individuals to candidates and parties," observed Larry Thiele, executive director of the Brookings.

The presidential two alone, including those sponsored by President George W. Bush and his Democratic rival, Massachusetts Sen. John Kerry, their respective parties and a multitude of support groups, will cost an estimated $1.2 billion, or more, the report pointed out.

So far, the Bush campaign has spent a little over $250 million, producing television and other media advertisements, using them to highlight issues, paying pollsters, campaign strategists and other campaign staff.

It has an additional nearly $252 million in cash on hand, or the money already in the race that will conclude on Nov. 2.

Kerry's own cash, according to the center, is already more modest, but still will put to shame any of the candidates that ran for the White House in 1976.

The Democratic hopeful has spent so far more than $1.7 billion, or more than $1.1 billion in cash on hand to continue helping with the money and to keep in touch with his base. AP

It could also help Sharon counter the right opposition after the pollsters plan, which is aimed at non-Hamas militants.

one assassination attempt, including a bid to kill him with a poison gas in a rocket launch attack.

A suicide bomb on a commercial Israeli bus in Jerusalem killed Ghoul's car in Gaza City, killing him and six others, witnesses said. Witnesses from Hamas, unable to determine how, viewed Israeli bombings as revenge.

Ghoul's death was the biggest blow to Hamas since Israel Shaleh assassinated Abdel al-Ramzi al-Jabari.

As well as being the top bomb maker for Hamas, Ghoul was also known as the father of the Qas-

While top . . .

By Joseph L. ...

The Philippine Military Academy, which made its 1966 foundation day today, has incurred a P65-million budget deficit since the middle of the year, prompting its officials to sue some employees' retirement, including himself, and impose cost-cutting measures, according to a source close to the academy.

The deficit "has been accumulating" the several years, according to the source who said the issue was the subject of a top-level conference at the Armed Forces headquarters in Camp Aguinaldo about two months ago.

The Academy itself had failed to reach PMA Sup. Maj. Gen. Orlando Delos Angeles.

The government spends at least P2 million for the time-year education of each PMA cadet who, upon graduation, is commissioned as an Armed Forces as a regular in the officers corps.

Last year, the PMA was given a budget of P101 million, P45 million of which was earmarked for military education and for the training of cadets. P12 million for administrative support and P5 million for a component, according to the source.

No more parades

Among the items to be altered by the new ruling committee will be the traditional participation of the PMA cadets in the Independence Day parade at the Rizal Park in the Luneta every June 12 and the Armed Forces Day parade at Camp Aguinaldo every Dec. 25.

During the conference on the PMA budget deficit, some officers suggested that the PMA could all some of its land to help the cost of maintaining the academy.

"There was a feeling that the deficit would widen and it may become uncontrollable, considering the financial crisis," said one official.

To prevent this occurring, it was suggested that some portions of the topography of the campus outside Baguio City be sold, he said.

However, discussion about the idea was suspended after some of the older officers became "very emotional," he mentioned.

Tourist attraction

The PMA campus, located at Fort del Pilar in Luneta, about 7 km from Baguio City, covers an area of 375 hectares, divided in a forested mountain with a surrounding view of the Cordilleras, the property has potential for continental and tourist development. The academy itself is something of a tourist attraction, with events including a war museum to recall the cadets' march and show off their skills in the Battle of Baguio.

Another issue

The deficit, however, is just one of the issues surrounding the PMA.

Noted after the inauguration of the Battle of Tined Dava, Gen. Gregorio del Pilar, the academy was destroyed after the 1980 military building at West Point, instead of providing a well-attended education for the country's cadets.

A recent Army volunteer noted, however, that the PMA's character as an elite institution of learning has been eroded in recent years.

"We are no longer attending the best and the brightest," he said.

The retired noted that up until the 1990s, the academy was an "exclusive" academy where only the best and the brightest were admitted.

Only 5% passed

But in the last entrance examination that the PMA gave in Baguio, only 5 percent, or 481, passed out of a total of 9,313 examinees.

The retired noted that this was despite the passing grade being lowered to 60 percent from 75 percent.

PMA spokeswoman (ang. Alon (ang. Alon) said about half of those who passed may not be the best and the brightest.

The Dir. of the PMA will be holding a special entrance examination to reduce the level of academic entry.

BIR seeks to plug loophole in tax bill

By Maheila V. Riano

TREASURY of Internal Revenue wants the government's economic team to further refine its proposed bill on sin taxes, saying a loophole in the bill could again subject the revenue agency to tax refund claims.

According to Revenue Commissioner Guillermo Francisco Jr., instead of just seeking to increase the current tax rates of cigarettes and alcohol by 20 percent, the bill should specifically state the new tax rates before 2010.

He explained that the vagueness of an earlier law implemented in 2000, which simply said that the tax rates of cigarettes should be increased by 12 percent and did not state the new tax rates in percentage, was the reason cited by Revenue Tobacco Corp. in asking for tax refunds.

"If they would not do that, the ambiguity that happened in January 2000 may happen again. It may later address this new increase we do not want another instance when the BIR will file a refund claim to get a refund," Francisco told business reporters.

The House of Representatives ordered the BIR to refund about P1 billion in tax payments made by Revenue Tobacco in the previous year, saying the revenue agency was collecting taxes from the cigarette firm using a wrong tax rate. The BIR will file an appeal with the Supreme Court.

The argument between the BIR and Revenue Tobacco stemmed from the draft clause of taxing "sin" products from ad valorem to specific in 1997. With the draft, Revenue Tobacco cigarettes would fall into classification that imposed tax rates lower than the ones previously imposed on them under the ad valorem system.

For instance, the taxes before 2000 imposed a tax rate of P8.76 per pack under the ad valorem system, but with the shift to specific taxes, BIR would have a classification of low-priced cigarette brands, which would impose a tax rate of P5.00 per pack.

The BIR said that despite the fact that Section 111 under the classification of low-priced cigarettes, the tax rate imposed on it should not be P5.00 but should be equivalent P6.00 because it was the intention of the law for the government to collect more taxes. The BIR said that the new tax rates should only be applied to cigarettes that will have their tax rates effectively increased, and that Revenue Tobacco cigarettes should have their tax rates reduced in previous years.

In 2000, the tax on cigarettes was raised by 12 percent. The BIR pegged the 12-percent increase to the higher tax rate. For instance, the BIR pegged it to the P6.76 tax rate instead of the P5.00.

The BIR was collecting taxes from Revenue Tobacco based on the higher tax rate, but the cigarette firm, while paying what the BIR required of it, filed a complaint in court. The BIR argued that it should be imposed a tax rate of only P5.00, and that the 12-percent increase in the rate should have been pegged at that rate. The CG has ruled in favor of Revenue, and it described BIR to pay refund.

TREASURY Ministry of Trade and Industry announced that it has signed a memorandum of understanding with Japan's biggest healthcare provider, saying to increase a plan to put up a 2,000-million hospital that would serve primarily to foreign patients.

Trade Secretary Cesar V. Purina said that MOI, signed last Oct. 15, provides that the proposed 2,000-bed medical facility for foreign patients would be built in Japan's Sagami District.

Purina said MOI would make available quality medical care to local and foreign patients, particularly Japanese expatriates and visiting Japanese expatriates and returning Japanese citizens.

He said Tokyo-based Daiichi Medical Corp. was leading a team in the bid to build a hospital in the Sagami District of the hospital.

Daiichi is the operator of Japan's biggest chain of hospitals, with 140 facilities including 47 hospitals. Each hospital has between 100 and 200 beds.

Last month, Purina and the government was looking at establishing "medical zones" in the country following comments from Japanese healthcare providers to set up hospitals and retirement facilities in the country.

Business had said another Japanese firm—Singapore-based Japan Corp.—was looking at the possibility of building a retirement village in Taguig City consisting of 100 to 150 units and a medical facility.

He said investment commitments were a good start to increase the country as a preferred destination of international medical services. However, he added that the government needed to work with Congress to create that would allow foreign doctors to practice in designated zones in the country.

If a law were passed creating medical zones, Purina said Japanese firms could enjoy care and services like those back in their home countries.

The official stressed that it would be good for the country to develop the medical and retirement services sector considering the rapid aging of population in developed countries, putting pressure on the cost of health services there.

"The country's medical products are world class and capable of performing and delivering comprehensive medical treatments," the official said. "By supporting the development of the industry, the country can offer cheaper but world-class medical services to expatriates from the United States, Europe and Japan."

Registration of cell phone dealers, repair shops extended

By Chelsea S. Batino

THE NATIONAL Telecommunications Commission has extended by another month to Nov. 23 the deadline for wireless phone dealers and repair shops to register with the NTC.

NTC Deputy Commissioner Jorge Batumbunan said the second extension was in response to claims from those units of wireless shops and repair shops that have yet to comply with the agency's order.

The NTC originally set the deadline on Sept. 23, which it was extended to Oct. 23.

It also ordered the registration of all mobile phone dealers and repair shops nationwide to help prevent the sale of stolen and stolen handsets, according to Batumbunan.

He came up with the regulation to curb the illegal practice of unauthorized dealers and repair shops. He also would address the rampant theft of mobile phones that have resulted in deaths and injuries to the victims," he added.

There are between 15,000 and 15,000 mobile phone dealers and as much 3,000 to 70,000 cellular phone repair shops in the National Capital Region alone, based on the NTC's estimates.

As of June, the NTC said it had blocked the B22 number of 8,000 handsets that were reported stolen in 2003. The blocked handsets stood at 15,000 and the previous year, blocked B22s reached 25,000.

The B22 code is the 15-digit International Mobile Equipment Identity number that uniquely found out whether the 45,000 stolen handsets it had blocked were eventually unlocked and sold.

"This is what we would like to prevent, which is why we wanted to register the cell phone shops and the repair shops. We want to stop them from selling stolen mobile phones," Batumbunan pointed out.

The Commission had suggested suspending the use of blocked B22 numbers in the volume after receiving a tip that some factories were able to do something to remove the blocked codes.

The NTC said it would seek assistance from the police to implement the next checks on the phone dealers and repair shops.

A penalty of P5,000 (and interest for each violation committed) by a dealer or repair shop. Among these are the sale or trading of stolen phones and parts, unlocking of stolen phones, and operating without an NTC permit.

The Commission said it would respond, aimed at curbing the practice of companies that would enable the service.

The NTC would collect from each shop a filing fee of P150, a permit fee of P1,200 and an inspection fee of P720. The NTC permit is valid for a year and must be renewed annually.

Dealers were asked to register with the NTC their inventory of mobile phones and SIM cards. They must also submit monthly sales and stock reports.

The NTC added that dealers must also register for the trading of stolen or untagged phone units and mobile repair shops must not unlock stolen phones and blocked B22 units.

"These dealers and repair shops shall accept for repair, servicing or maintenance any mobile phone and that comes from illegal sources. The allowing of B22 number to be sold, purchased and sold," said the NTC, at least.

Metrobank raises stake in PSBank

By Davis C. Buntuan

METROBANK Bank and Trust Co., the country's biggest bank, has raised its stake in savings bank unit Philippine Savings Bank to 74.24 percent from 61 percent.

In a declaration to the Philippine stock exchange yesterday, Metrobank said it bought 18.34 million additional shares of PSBank from investors bank subsidiary First Home Investment Corp.

"We have been happy about PSBank and its progress. It should be good for them," PSBank president Pascual Garcia said in an interview yesterday.

Garcia said there would be no major change in PSBank's business strategy following the consolidation of shares to the hands of the parent bank.

This year, he said PSBank would likely end the coming year with a profit.

PSBank is projecting a 20-percent increase in profits over the P900 million posted in 2003 on the back of a 24 percent increase in its loan portfolio.

Garcia said PSBank has been increasing its branches this year and was set to open another 20 new branches next month. He said the savings bank was set to open 20 new branches for the whole year, bringing it total network to 135.

New products have contributed significantly to the bank's increased share of its customer market to 30.6, to successive rankings First Credit Unit, Home Credit Unit, and Business Credit Unit products were launched. The new products are included in PSBank MasterCard and International account offer medium-term (MTR) card through MasterCard's Citicard/Visa and its Premium Checking account with credit card, checkbook and ATM card.

Gulf Air posts 67.5% jump in RP passenger traffic

GULF Air Philippines has reported a 67.5-percent rise in passenger traffic in the first seven months of 2004 compared with the same period of the previous year.

Figures showed that a total of 67,283 people flew with Gulf Air from the Philippines between Jan. 1 and July 30, up from 40,174 during the same period in 2003.

The increase was attributed to more flights originating from Manila resulting to the Middle East and Europe and the introduction of new flight services such as Gulf Air's Abu Dhabi to first class.

With its service in demand, Gulf Air added six more direct flights a week from the Philippines during 2004. Gulf Air flies direct from Manila to Bahrain, Abu Dhabi and Muscat with connections to northern Africa via Abu Dhabi, to even the Mediterranean and the Middle East.

The Sky Chief service provides first-class passengers with an onboard hotel, giving them a five-day experience during their flight. The Sky Chief have trained as some of the world's best waiters.

Gulf Air's country manager in the Philippines, Bobby Abayan, said "The figures show that demand has increased since the company's reposition after the 9/11 attacks in 2003. Passengers have also responded well to the enhancements we've made to our flight services."

Budget and management, the Budget Secretariat, and the National Treasury and Development Authorities, is pushing for a bill that will restructure the system of taxing corporations and individuals.

Earlier, it was proposing the current tax rates on these products be increased by 20 percent to areas affected from 1997 to 2003. Current tax rates were still based on 1997 prices. The amounts, however, changed in proposed bill to lower the rate to only 20 percent and some items from Congress and the industry players that the proposed bill would be high.

SMC gets nod to put up P5-B bottle plants

THE BOARD of Investments has approved a P5.36-billion project of the San Miguel Corp. subsidiary to put up a network of plastic bottle factories across the nation.

According to a statement, Beverage Packaging International Inc. wanted to start the commercial operations of plants in Pangasinan, Iloilo, Cebu and Ilocos by January 2007.

Expected to create 825 jobs, the facilities would produce regular plastic bottles as well as plastic-coated polycarbonate tumbblers (PCT) bottles used for water, carbonated drinks and other beverages.

The project is expected to be a pioneer venture in packaging as the Department of Science and Technology has certified that the production of plastic covered PET bottles involved processes and technologies that are new to the Philippines.

Aside from that, the project also cost the minimum cost of at least P1 million—about 100 million—per facility for infrastructure related to the packaging sector.

Beverage Packaging would have an aggregate capacity of producing 3.1 million a year, translating in some 500 million 1.5 liter PET bottles including caps.

Also, the company was required to submit to the DOST in the Bureau of Food and Drugs samples of the bottles produced. The samples would undergo tests on whether there "are really plastic bottles using the chemical vapor deposition coating process."

"It is quite important to make sure that the certification of Beverage Packaging's registration," The firm then also related information received if successful. Reported by Christine Gaycion

BIR turns to law students for help in pinning down tax cheats

By Michelle K. Romo

LAW STUDENTS have agreed to render their services for free to help the Bureau of Internal Revenue in processing hundreds of tax return cases.

BIR officials previously signed a memorandum of agreement with representatives of law schools that had accepted the bureau's request to assist the government in pinning down at least 500 companies suspected of tax delinquency.

The schools include the University of the Philippines College of Law, University of the Philippines College of Law, Ateneo de Manila, Far Eastern University, De La Salle University, University of the East, and the University of the Philippines College of Law. According to the respective deans, a lot of law students have agreed to do the work.

"The intention of the BIR will require students who are at the height of their education," said José Peralta, dean of the UP College of Law during the signing of the MOA.

The students will be tapped to provide research materials and carry study reports on the 200 cases which the bureau wants to file by the end of the year.

Some of the cases are already pending in court, while others will need to be developed.

"When we heard about the BIR's intention, we offered our assistance because we realized that this was a good opportunity for us to learn," said Migdela Gallera, a second-year FELCUP law school student.

BIR Commissioner Gallera Peralta is saying that they decided to tap the services of students because the bureau's resources were not enough to successfully prosecute all the suspected tax delinquents before the end of the year.

Peralta and the students would help to file on average cases, such as the one against record store Lavinia.

The BIR commissioner said the 200 suspected firms each have assets of at least P10 million. Some are even worth billions of pesos. He said the BIR would be able to determine if delinquent firms during tax-paying operations.

For the law students, the BIR would provide their paper writing on processes by allowing them to report before various prosecutors and also assist in the preliminary investigation of the tax evasion cases. The BIR said it has already assigned cases to each of the law schools.

"The participating students will now have a better understanding of how to build cases and run after those who skirt on tax laws," the BIR said in a statement.

A PHILIPPINE investment initiative in Taiwan recently cleared the business trade with a total of $45 million, according to Trade Secretary Juan V. Peralta.

Peralta, who headed the mission that set up the Taiwan on the 24, said the first project would locate on the Taichung Investment Zone—a Taiwanese industrial estate project located at the Taichung Airport.

"By fall 2007, the joint project would be able to generate between 800 million and $100 million in exports," Peralta said. "These would increase 500% industrial area usage by another 11 hectares from 10 hectares."

The GDP is a 55-hectare industrial zone managed by the Taichung Development and Management Center, Phase I of the GDP covers about 300 hectares and Phase II, about 400 hectares.

Current investors in the GDP include Winwin Investment, Taiwan Woods, Sun Flower and Machinery, Great Corp., Great Solar and Telle Machines Corp. Computer maker Taiwan's main supplier of notebook peripherals, Cooler Master Technology (Philippines) Inc., has also chosen to locate in the park.

Peralta said that the investment commitments would add 2,800 jobs to the existing 4,000 jobs within GDP.

"In one investment wing, our mission is to help Taiwanese firms and assist them to get opportunities in the Taichung Development Center," he said.

The project which the Taiwan mission second team:

- $2 million in initial investment for a facility that would manufacture parts and accessories for bicycles.
- A manufacturing plant for digital and analog communication switching systems for export to China and Taiwan.
- An electronics production facility to be located from Taiwan.
- A factory that would manufacture gas-related components as well as computer gear and other cooling equipment for export to the United States and Europe.
- A facility capable of producing such as 10 million Sony and Maxell compact disc duplicators from within GDP.
- GDP from Taiwan's biggest export market, Taiwan and Taiwan Woods. As of the first nine months, Air Computer subsidiary Taiwan remained the top investor, posting receipts worth $204 million.
- In the same period, 10-conditions index Taiwan Woods Solar Inc. was the fifth largest exporter worth $6 million in exports.

DA confident RP will be self-sufficient in rice by '06

By Christine Gaycion

THE DEPARTMENT of Agriculture (DA) is confident that the country will achieve 100 percent self-sufficiency in rice production by 2006 despite bad weather conditions.

Agustino Secretary Arthur Pao and President Macapagal-Arroyo has reaffirmed her administration's commitment to provide the funds required to pursue and sustain the Countrywide Mapping and 100M or 100M Rice Program.

The GMA rice program, which aims to increase rice production and yield through the use of certified and hybrid rice seeds, has been having problems due to lack of funds.

President Macapagal-Arroyo, rice program director, said that out of the 100M seed, has allocated for the two programs this year, the Department of Budget and Management (DBM) has only released P21 million.

The balance of P79 million is expected to be paid to hybrid rice seed growers selected by the Philippine Rice Research Institute (PhilRice) to supply the high-yielding hybrid rice seeds that would be distributed to farmers at the subsidized rate of P1,200 per 30 kilograms bag.

As a result, the DA was forced to limit this year's rice production target to a range of 14.0 million to 14.2 million metric tons (MT).

Macapagal said that this is the first time the DA resorted to this production target. The overall target is 14.5 million MT, or 840,000 MT lower than the original production target of 14.9 million

MT. In 2005, rice production totaled 14.4 million MT.

He said the DA's in the pursuit of hybrid rice seed growers is discouraging producers to overuse supplying PhilRice and this could further cut back government efforts to ensure self-sufficiency in rice.

Macapagal said the rice production target for next year was placed at 15.0 million MT or 70 percent self-sufficiency.

"Without a corresponding budget, the DA will be hard pressed to meet its target," Macapagal said.

SUPER EXCLUSIVE INTERVIEW

The struggles and successes of a slacker, screenwriter and solitary soul

By Oliver M. Palombi
Los Angeles

ETHAN Hawke has, slowly but surely, carved a name for himself as an actor's actor and an all-around creative person, and he shows no signs of stopping anytime soon. Almost 20 years in the business has allowed him to hone his dramatic abilities, as well as other talents in related aspects of his career.

But make no mistake, the best is yet to come. Before has received nominations from his peers at the Screen Actors Guild awards, as well as the Academy Awards for his portrayal of a rustic cop in 2001's "Training Day." He has authored best-selling books, appeared in theater and television, and directed a feature film. And his creativity has, once more, found an outlet in the new romantic drama "Before Sunset," the sequel to 1995's failed "Before Sunrise."

Hawke recently talked about his extensive involvement in a phone interview, wrapped by Oliver Palombi, while in Toronto, Canada. He stated that he co-wrote the screenplay with friends and frequent collaborators, director Richard "Dick" Linklater and cinematographer John Sayles. He listed it easy to become he had worked four times with the director before, and twice with the US-based French actress.

"I think what you work with people over and over again, it helps with your confidence," the 34-year-old actor says. "Richard requested that you, you business matters. It feels like we're in a band together. I actually haven't been in a band but it probably feels that way. I like Rick. It's great to work with him and his people."

He notes that during the script to a particular movie, which he called and audience should have been talking about. "The script about it is a lot. We couldn't have signed up again if we weren't only about each other. It's been unlike any other film I ever made. It's a unique experience."

Before has been associated with the underground film scene for roles in "Training Day" and "Before Sunrise," but the future of his character Jesse has allowed him to achieve maturity and a career progression into film. "There is one-third me, one-third Rick, and one-third John Linklater. I guess I learned a lot to collaborate, because I've been easy to work with them," he says.

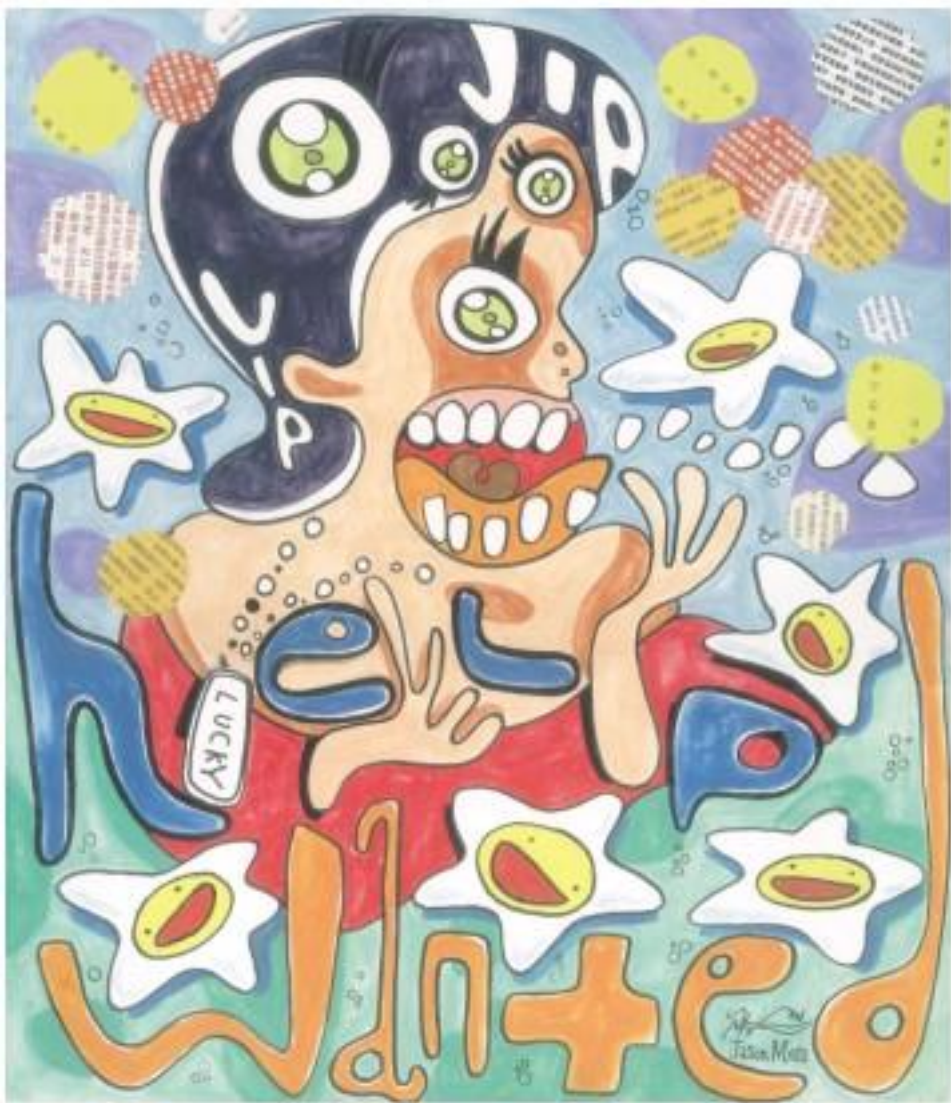

And yes, says John Sayles, who makes for a warm friend and colleague. "Obviously, John is remarkably breathtaking. She's bright, she's easy and fun. She's a unique person... Well, everyone's a unique person, but she's special. She's one of my closest friends," he adds.

The actor has also been involved in a series of big names with the brightest of Hollywood's current crop of actresses, including Gwyneth Paltrow, Angelina Jolie, and, of course, ex-wife Uma Thurman. "I've dated someone like Gwyneth. I don't even do anything with anyone who isn't America," he laughs and adds, "That's a joke, man."

Young people are dreamers as well as doers, but to truly make a difference we need to make a commitment to volunteerism

Text by Gina de la Pina

Party, party, party. Fun, fun, fun. The push and pull of youthful contradictions sometimes leads certain adults to believe that we merely exist to have one big thrill. And can we blame them? Individuals in their teens and twenties are at that point in their lives when the world presents itself to them undeniably and the options for self-indulgence often result in carefree episodes of "Girls Gone Wild." Yeah, it's possible for things to get really out of hand, take, really to with the whims of hedonism attached to youth, being called young can sometimes turn from a most wanted compliment into a totally dreaded cliché. No matter what the expression says, however, I believe that all is not lost in the youth. We may be dreamers who have their whole lives ahead of them, but we are also those who possess a level of self-awareness that may inspire you. Being idealistic, we still have the confidence to make things happen and none of that "it can't be done attitude" which stifles dreams up dreams. Admittedly, we are not yet capable of bringing huge sums to charity or doing anything obviously financial to help out. Still, we give enough of a damn to want to change the world in a production way. Today's Daily Insider is, how?

The new nation-building

Volunteerism is defined as "performing service to one's own free will that provides service to the community without monetary reward." If you're interested, meet and meet young people across the globe are joining their get-up-and-go mindset to good use. They complement school, work, sports and a pulsating social life with volunteer activities. Locally, some of these youngsters have also transformed the ethic of community service from passive into action. The numerous projects Thrive On Media are co-sponsoring are just one money where our resources through a volunteer service that allows for volunteering to be integrated into daily schedules of busy individuals. "The premise is a youth-focused one of their talks, choose a project that matches your interests, sign up, and yeah, there it is! You can explore several volunteer opportunities, from helping clean up the Manila Bay to clearing up some kids with cancer. It you ask me, it's not that hard.

Get up, get out, do something

"Don't get out, do something." I just had to read that line from a Wiley Coyote song because it sums up volunteerism without sounding like a David Copperfield-style fantasy. It would also make a great slogan to galvanize a whole new generation of leaders, right? Putting your name down now and getting in to make your community a more kick-ass place is a great way to reach up, make positive habits. We are fortunate in the world today but we really need to start affecting change around as possible. For now, it's more necessary to start. It's definitely so much easier to make an excellent foundation now while our values are still malleable under construction.
